This week in labor history:

- On September 3rd, 1916, the U.S. Congress passed the Adamson Act. The legislation mandated an 8-hour workday for workers in the interstate railroad industry. Congress, with the support of President Woodrow Wilson, supported the legislation as a means of averting a looming nationwide strike by railroad workers. To learn more about the history of the act, visit the official website of the U.S. House of Representatives Archives.
